HAPPY NEW YEAR AND HAPPY HOLIDAYS IN NAPLES AND CAMPANIA!

An excellent choice to spend your Christmas holidays in Naples, a riot of fireworks: these are used mostly to propitiate the new year, leaving the hard work of the past year behind. Today, like yesterday, the energy and the hope of Neapolitans are all superstitiously concentrated in two rituals: setting off fireworks, and getting rid of old things, which reach their climax on the evening of the 31st, donating to all tourists around the world a wonderful firework show set in the beautiful surrounding frame of the gulf of Naples.

This year, the promenade will be dominated by NAlbero, an engineering creation which looks like a huge Christmas tree, a metal fir tree that stands on the seafront, 45 meters high and illuminates it with 1,300,000 LED lamps. Symbol of Christmas in Naples and synthesis of the city, very modern while strongly tied to tradition, the installation will be set up until March 2017. It is worth it to take a tour, for an aperitif, for dinner with a spectacular view or simply to enjoy one of the most beautiful sceneries in the world and take photos of this fantastic holiday in Naples!

» However, before visiting the city, don't forget to ask your concierge for our City Map.

3 SIGNS OF LIGHT

Solo exhibition by Claudia Meyer promoted by the cultural Institution Art1307 and organized by Cynthia Penna. Of Swiss origin, Claudia Meyer lives and works in Lucerne, Paris and Los Angeles, three cities that have deeply influenced her way of expressing herself and communicating. Her artistic production envelops the viewer in a sensory crescendo, almost as if her art were music. An evocative use of light which illuminates the scene directing the viewer's eye only towards certain focal points.

BORN IN NAPLES

FROM WEDNESDAY
TILL SUNDAY

11-22

The pride of being Neapolitan and the daughter of creation

Beyond words may colors, over distances can the moods of your birth land which is always present even when it is far away. This is the concept behind Annapatrizia Settembre's solo exhibition, "Born in Naples", in which the artist represents her tight relationship with the city, her pride of being born in Naples and, at the same time, the consciousness of being the daughter of creation, body and soul. On display, paintings of different sizes made with mixed techniques on canvas, glass, Plexiglass, aluminum, cardboard and wood. Works through which old memories become colors, traces of past generations become present, words no longer need to be said, but are left to the imagination through bold brushwork and where fear and past pain are colored and turned into positivity.

Armando Jossa, critic and art teacher, defines the artwork of September:

"Narrative, dreamy thoughts colored by a sincere hand, free of falseness and self-celebrating virtuosity, which talk about love in a simple and painful way. Hope for the future of coexistence, ideas of coexistence and brotherhood free from ideological and / or moral barriers. A constant pictorial research, curious in its multi material experiments. Strong and bold colors that alternate with others more subdued. Paintings and 'whispered' poems by an untamable pen towards the injustice of human existence".

The emblems of the exhibition are two paintings, "Butterfly" and "Fortuna", in which the artist represents women's ability to undergo transformation to defend themselves, their land and their children. Annapatrizia September is a very versatile artist. Born in Naples in 1965, she is a writer, sociologist and journalist, poet and painter. She has published four novels and an art catalogue distributed by Amazon worldwide. Her writings and paintings involve many senses, soul and brain, smell and memory, hopes and dreams, sweeping away fears and giving courage, optimism and victory.

The success of Settembre, over the years, has landed overseas as well: the artist created a painting entitled "San Gennaro" which is currently guarded by the Deputation "Children of San Gennaro" of the homonym church dedicated to the patron saint of Naples, in New York.

The fascinating world of "red gold"

The history of coral told by someone who has made it a reason for living

The origins of gold production in Naples are ancient. Already in ancient Parthenope worked many goldsmiths from Magna Grecia. The activity was flourishing in Roman times, even in Pompeii, where a shop was found with branches of coral on the desk, the carving of which is typical of our area.

We spoke with Caterina Ascione, art historian and designer, member of the historical family of jewelers of Torre del Greco, for centuries the land of coral. The first thing she told us about is the world record of Torre del Greco, the only place in the world where cameo is created from shells, an art which dates back to the institution of the first coral factory in town, by the Marseille Bartholomew Marten, in 1805.

In time, "the carvers of Torre del Greco specialized in carving shells because the value of the raw material was low, allowing small shops to operate with little capital", she explained. Not only: Neapolitan jewelry has always been linked to the production of souvenirs of Campania archaeological remains. "The Etruscan jewelry was often used with coral and enamels, and, even before that, Naples was the manufacturing center of excellence of precious metals throughout the Mediterranean. The treasures of the Chapel of San Gennaro are an example: the extremely innovative work of the miter by Matteo Treglia and all the other small jewelry of which we have examples".

Today, in the jewelry industry, Campania region is the fourth pole in Italy and the crafting and processing of coral and cameo continues to be a typical art of Torre del Greco.

The story of coral is tied to women. "The factory in Torre implanted by Marten employed mainly women workers - explains Ascione - In Torre, for more than 6 months a year, women were the only inhabitants of the city because the men left for coral fishing. Since they were paid half at the beginning and half upon their return, also based on the amount of coral fished, women were forced to work to support themselves and coral allowed them to do so. They were engaged in operations requiring more sensitivity and precision: threading, punching and the choice of the corals. The toughest work, however, was left to the men, such as cutting and polishing (the coral was wiped for seven hours under running water in cloth bags). Still today a certain division of roles remains, even though not as strict.

The threading and the choice of colors is still left to the women, but there is a greater number of women entrepreneurs".

Is it true that in the past, coral was considered an apotropaic object?

"Of course! It was considered a symbol of strength, vitality, and fertility. Until the 1700s it was thought to be the only object belonging simultaneously to the three kingdoms of nature: plant, due to its arboreal form, mineral, because it's as hard as a stone, and animal, because when freshly caught it has small octopuses on it. Even in the coral transformation process from soft, in the form of seaweed, before being caught, to when it hardens right out of the water, there is always a reference to a phallic shape. At the same time, it was propitiatory to fertility: coral was given to young brides to keep them healthy and make them procreate and to nurses to increase the tastiness of their breast milk. In Christian times, coral was associated with the color of the blood of Christ. It is a sector in which women and men have always had a very close relationship. According to the legend, in fact, Gorgon, from whom it is said that coral originated, was both a man and a woman".

What does coral represent for you? "I come from generations of coral, fishermen and entrepreneurs. I've been exposed to coral since I was a child; it's my life. Then I began to study it and, in fact, learning the history of coral has made me understand better who I am today".

Torre del Greco calls upon Unesco

Interview with Tommaso Mazza, promoter of the candidacy of Torre del Greco coral art as a Unesco World Heritage

Last November the proposal for Torre del Greco coral and cameo crafting to join the UNESCO list of intangible heritage was presented. Already accepted by the Ministry of Cultural Heritage and the Italian UNESCO Commission, the proposal will be evaluated by UNESCO Paris, which is responsible for final approval. Tommaso Mazza, head of the Organizing Committee and president of Assocoral, tells us about it.

Tommaso Mazza

How did the idea of proposing the nomination to UNESCO arise?

It came from the need to enhance the manufacturing of coral and cameo especially to the eyes of the authorities. The city of Torre del Greco is a known leader in this industry, but not yet officially recognized. We need greater visibility and the road towards nomination seemed viable, although not at all simple: it is a long and complicated path, but in the meantime we will be able to encourage people talk about us more.

What are the numbers of the coral sector?

300 active companies and 5000 employees including the armature. The turnover is remarkable: from 4 million to 500 million euro. Despite these numbers, no one has ever worked hard enough so that the industry would be given the right importance. Everyone tells us we are good but, in the end, nothing concrete ever comes about. Yet, despite the crisis, the niche area we work in has made it, even in the midst of many difficulties.

What would be the fallout of Torre del Greco if the proposal were to be accepted?

I wish to emphasize that this is first and foremost a cultural and not a commercial operation. Our interest is to foster protection, preservation and enhancement of a historic and cultural heritage. If the proposal is accepted, Torre del Greco will be known internationally as a town where there is a cultural heritage recognized as belonging to humanity, it would have a high profile, there would be a relapse of major tourist hotels, restaurants and museums. And the field of coral and cameos itself could gain advantages from the recognition and be encouraged to pursue a more serious penetration into international markets.

What is the perception of this important sector internationally?

Only insiders know how important the industry is, and not even all of them. For example, not everyone knows that Torre del Greco is the only place in the world where cameo is carved from shells and that any piece of shell, from the smallest to largest, is completely handmade. The wider public doesn't know and, even among professionals, only senior professionals know. It is something that the whole world should instead become aware of.

Neapolitan cuisine

A journey through Neapolitan culture, entirely built on flavors, where food is considered first of all a moment of joy and sharing because, for centuries, there was very little of it

Naples: a culture built on tastes. Taking us on this journey through the flavors, history and tradition of Neapolitan cuisine, is Luciano Pignataro, journalist, writer and gastronomist, who dedicated his last book to this theme. The title of the book is "Neapolitan cuisine", edited by Hoepli.

What is the main ingredient of Neapolitan cuisine?
The joy, the pleasure of gathering and sharing food. In Naples there has always been a great lack of food, for this reason, meals are always considered a time of pleasure and happiness, when you reach the goal of ending the day. Food is not something foreign to Neapolitans: it is within us. So much that we don't say "food" but "eating": we identify food with the gesture, so the verb "eating" becomes a noun.

What influence did Neapolitan cuisine have on Italian cuisine?

Essential. In Naples many eating habits have mixed together over centuries: the ones of invaders, the Roman greek ancient heritage, the legacy of the monks and the new habits that arise in a city that was for centuries the most populated Italian city. Naples also had one of the most important European aristocracies who came here with their cooks. The first gastronomic revolution in Italy took place between the end of the 1700s and the beginning of the 1800s with the court chefs and Monzù. For this reason, Neapolitan cuisine deeply influences Italian cuisine, and the most famous words of Italian cuisine, pasta and pizza, come from Naples.

The most typical Neapolitan food is pizza. Is that so?

Our pizza is special because it's cooked in specially designed ovens, made to cook at very high temperature, which have a small, moon shaped opening. Other pizzas are more like bread, they are also very good, but pizza is another thing.

Is there a dish that you imported and then characterized as yours?
The Genoese, which is also my favorite dish! It has Ligurian origins: an onion and meat sauce that Neapolitan creativity made into a pasta sauce. Pasta with vegetables is the trademark of Neapolitan cuisine, even more than the seafood.

What are the basic ingredients of your cuisine?

Garlic, olive oil, lard, broccoli, tomatoes, oregano, basil, legumes and vegetables, because in Naples pasta mostly replaces bread.

Which is a typical Neapolitan winter dish?
Maritata (married) soup is a typical Neapolitan dish, which represents the desire for meat which is not really present, a "poor" dish. In our cuisine there is always a trace of meat that is never real meat. In fact Neapolitans developed a cuisine which uses mostly animal guts, with spicy soup, those parts of the animal considered less noble but equally nutrient. Also pasta with beans and pork rind, a very complete dish.

Monetti: Quality and innovation in Naples

Claudio Argenziano, who manages the company with his wife Gabriella Monetti, tells us about the restyling of the headquarters in Via dei Mille and the secret of the success of one of the oldest shops of the city

Last October the jeweler Monetti, one of the oldest shops in Naples, renewed its headquarters in Via dei Mille. "Where" interviewed Claudio Argenziano, now running the company with his wife, Gabriella Monetti.

What kind of changes have been made to the jewelry shop?

The most striking change made to the shop, is the ability to access the upper floor. Before, customers left their watches at the entrance. Now, they are taken upstairs where, with the new laboratory, they can personally see the very high technology used and the specialized technicians. Not only: in the space adjacent to the first floor we have created a warm private atmosphere, a cozy and secluded place that ensures customers a completely exclusive purchasing experience.

The jewelry has been open since 1901. Can you tell us its story?

In the early twentieth century, the name Monetti was already synonym of high-class watchmaking: in particular, those who sought the pocket exemplary, the most exclusive wrist model, were certain it could be found only in Via Santa Brigida, 60. In the mid-50s, Guglielmo Monetti passed on the business to his sons, Guglielmo and Ugo, who expanded the jewelry offer and transformed the shop into an increasingly unique selling point. In 1954 a store in Rome, in Via delle Convertite, was opened, always favoring the high watchmaking and professionalism of the staff. In 1968, a second store was opened in Naples, in Via dei Mille, the most prestigious street of the city.

What is the secret to the business's success?

The desire to continuously innovate and anticipate customer needs. Our business is characterized by professionalism and by the prestigious environments of the two stores, in line with the Rolex brand, which we always have represented in Naples.

Monetti since 1904

The turn of the 20th century saw the opening of the first 'Monetti' store at its historic headquarters in via Santa Brigida. Its founder Guglielmo senior, a qualified technician-watchmaker and a far-sighted pioneer of his times, defied public opinion by believing in the water-resistant properties of Rolex watches, an intuition that resulted in the establishment of the Monetti-Rolux partnership, a tradition perpetuated since 1932.

Over time, Monetti also began selling other coveted watch brands and, in 1968, Guglielmo junior began to make a name for himself in the world of high-class jewelry, not only by developing his own designs but also by partnering with renowned goldsmiths like Pomellato.

Today, Monetti's two Naples-based stores in via Dei Mille and via Santa Brigida are still considered a reference point in the city's historical and commercial tradition.

Capodichino Airport

In Naples, the food and wine experience starts right from the airport. Behind the choice of the shops in the terminal, including their location, there is a careful study of the different profiles of travelers.

The International Airport of Naples Capodichino presents a wide range of food and beverage offer, both before and after the security checks. We asked Sergio Gallorini, consumer sales manager of the terminal, what are the criteria used to differentiate the food offer, and which GESAC factors, the company responsible for managing the airport, are considered more important.

"Each airport has its own story. Capodichino is a few kilometers from the city center, deeply connected to it, and that's why our offer is concentrated in the area before security controls: passengers are often accompanied here well in advance of the flight, especially tourists who come from the coast, so they have more time to stop and eat or drink something. Every three months we interview our passengers to better understand their desires and habits. We have identified five different profiles on the basis of which we make our choices. The dining options are scattered along the way from the check in to the gate: we have a long hallway that, without the food offer would only be only a transit corridor; so instead, we favor the stationing of passengers. Ample space is given to local excellence, from Feudi di San Gregorio with typical dishes of Irpinia to Garofalo Farms with buffalo mozzarella. Since, however, ours is an international airport, we also have opened a sushi bar to meet the needs of passengers who look for something different. And for who was in Naples for a long period of time and wants to eat something that is closer to home, we even have McDonald's. Much attention is devoted to the format, the type of products sold, but especially the value of money: if food and beverage are too expensive, then you will be led to think that all the rest of the shopping is too. We make sure that does not happen".

Swan lake

The Royal Ballet of the Moscow-Crown of Russia, directed by Anatoly Emelyanov, brings on stage at the Bellini Theatre one of the most represented ballets in the world. Music by Tchaikovsky

Ballet in two acts and four scenes. The Royal Moscow-Crown Ballet of Russia brings on stage at the Bellini Theatre, the masterpiece with music by Peter Ilyich Tchaikovsky on the libretto of Marius Petipa. Swan Lake was staged for the first time in 1877 at the Bolshoi Theatre in Moscow and left the audience rather indifferent. For this reason, after two years, it was revised by the two great choreographers Lev Ivanov and Marius Petipa, who on this occasion overcame their rivalries and together rewrote the choreography. Lev Ivanov supervised the so-called "white acts" (II and IV) and Marius Petipa took charge of the I and III acts, the "black acts." Even the music was revised, and other songs by Tchaikovsky were included. The new version, presented in 1979 at the Mariinsky Theatre in St. Petersburg, was a huge success. Since then, Swan Lake is one of the most represented ballets in the world, a show for fans of the genre but also for those who want to immerse themselves in a magical world, made of tulle and white shoes, on the memorable notes of one of the greatest Russian composers of the 1800s. The love story between Prince Siegfried and the beautiful Odette, victim of a spell that transforms her into a swan during the day and a girl at night, opposed by evil wizards and Odile's presence, is staged by the Royal Ballet of Moscow - Crown of Russia, the company founded and directed by Anatoly Emelyanov. The ballet company, known across the world, counts many dancers of great artistic experience and sophistication. Not only: it is the only company in the history of Russian ballet to have toured in East Africa: Tanzania to Zambia to Kenya.

Today, the soloists of the Company are Viktorija Truposkiadi and Yevgeny Truposkiadi, dancers of the Bolshoi Theatre in Moscow. The art direction as well as the adaptation of the choreography and libretto are by Anatoly Emelyanov. Produced by The Royal Ballet of Moscow - Crown of Russia.

A cheerful journey to discover the magical world of toys, with particular attention to the role that play has always had in favor of tolerance and overcoming all forms of discrimination. An exhibition that traces the journey of toys from the 1700s to the second half of the 1900s, during which the phenomenon of the most famous doll in the world explodes, Barbie.

On display are over a thousand little masterpieces belonging to the toy Museum of Naples Suor Orsola Benincasa: dolls, tin toys, puppets and wooden characters, board games and military games. An exhibition of international importance, including rare and clever toys, historical memories, testimonies of culture, craft skills and entrepreneurship, showcasing the importance of creative imagination, fantasy, and the so-called minor art best loved by children and families. A segment of the exhibition is dedicated to 'falseness' in the world of toys through the educational exhibition "You don't kid around with toys" promoted by the "Museum of True and False" in collaboration with the Public Prosecutor of Naples: starting from the display of games sequestered by the police and with the help of interactive games, the goal is to raise awareness regarding the values of legality and safety of consumers, above all, the health of children. The social topic plays a strong role, in the exhibition. Not surprisingly, the Toy Museum of Naples is dedicated to the memory of the gypsy child Ernst Lossa, killed by the Nazi eugenics campaign, and aims at bringing out, with strength with beauty, the joy and grace that toys condense and feed. The exhibition is sponsored by the Department of Culture and Tourism of the City of Naples.

Running till 19th March.
Mondays to Thursday, from 10am to 7pm;
Fridays and Saturdays from 10am to 10pm;
Sundays from 10am to 7pm.

BLOW YOUR MIND

Solo exhibition by the Serbian photographer Vladimir Milivojevic aka Boogie. The exhibition features a selection of about 80 images taken from two of the author's most acclaimed publications: 'It's all good' and 'A wah do dem'. Boogie's photographic production is strongly influenced by having lived in Serbia, a country devastated by war. Boogie is a chameleon of street culture, able to camouflage in gory, unlawful and out of the ordinary situations. The exhibition is organized by Yvonne De Rosa.

Running until 1st April. Open Monday through Wednesday by appointment and Thursday through Saturday from 10 am to 6.30 pm.

MONUMENTS & PLACES OF INTEREST

CASTEL DELL'OVO - According to ancient Neapolitan legend, its name stems from the egg which Virgil, the Latin poet, supposedly hid in its foundations to support the fortifications. The place where the egg was preserved was closed by heavy locks and kept secret because it was believed that all the facts and fortunes of Castel Marino depended upon it. From that time onwards, the fate of the castle and the entire city, was linked to that egg. The castle's fortifications and terrace offer a breathtaking view over the gulf – Open Mon-Sat 8am-7pm, Sun 8am-2pm – Borgo Marinaro – T: 081.2400055

CASTEL NUOVO - Also known as Maschio Angioino, it is one of the most recognizable symbols of the city built in 1279 by Charles I, king of Naples, as a royal residence for the House of Anjou. From the time that it was built, it was termed “New” to distinguish it from the older Castles of Ovo and Capuano. Worthy of note are its underground passages, its two towers and its courtyard, from which you can enjoy a fabulous view, its gallery and Piazza d'armi. Open Mon-Sat 9am - 7pm - via Vittorio Emanuele III - T: 081.7955877

CASTEL SANT'ELMO - The first documented information regarding the castle dates back to 1275. This star-shaped castle was originally a church dedicated to St. Erasmus. In 1329 it was enlarged at the behest of Robert of Anjou, who transformed it into a real palatium for himself and his court. Later Spanish viceroy Don Pedro de Toledo had it further fortified in 1538. Used as a military prison until the 1970s, in 1976 important restoration work on the castle began, returning it to its original structure. Open Wed-Mon 8.3am-

7.30pm - via Tito Angelini, 22 - T: 081.2294401 - www.polomusealenapoli.beniculturali.it/museo_se/museo_se.html

CHIESA DEL GESÙ NUOVO - Erected by the Jesuits between 1584 and 1601, its façade is actually part of a 15th century Renaissance palace. Its interior is spacious and light with a rich covering of coloured marbles and typical Florid Neapolitan frescoes. After the church was ravaged by fire in 1639, Cosimo Fanzago was commissioned to carry out restoration works that gave the Church a Baroque appearance. Its interior boasts a number of magnificent frescoes while its chapels feature the works of renowned artists of the calibre of Massimo Stanzione and Giuseppe Ribera. Particularly worthy of note are its sculptorial work and polychrome marble floor. Open Mon-Sun 7am-12.30pm and 4pm-7.30pm - piazza del Gesù - T: 081.5518613

CHIESA DI SAN DOMENICO MAGGIORE - Charles II of Anjou began the extensive rebuilding that produced the Church of San Domenico Maggiore. The work was done between 1238 and 1324, but the church has undergone extensive modifications over the centuries, including one in 1670 that recast the structure in the style of the Baroque. In the 19th century, however, the church was restored to its original Gothic design and is a motley combination of the two styles. Among the many artistic points of interest in the basilica are the frescoed ceiling by Francesco Solimena and sculptorial works, including the high altar by Cosimo Fanzago – Open Mon-Sun 8.30am-12-noon and 4.30pm-7pm – piazza S. Domenico Maggiore, 8 – T: 081.459188

CHIESA DI SAN FRANCESCO DI PAOLA - One of the most characteristic and famous of all

Neapolitan churches. Built in the mid-19th century, its circular form is reminiscent of the Pantheon in Rome. On the exterior, under a magnificent colonnade, you can see the statues of the four cardinal virtues and the three theological virtues while, at the sides of the stairway you will find two equestrian statues of king Ferdinand and his father, Charles III of Spain. Open Mon-Sat 6.45am-12-noon and 4.30pm-7.30pm - piazza del Plebiscito - T: 081.7645133

CITTÀ DELLA SCIENZA - The science museum pride of the city, which attracted thousand of visitors every year, was almost entirely destroyed by an arson attack that shook Naples, Italy and the whole world on March 4 2013. A huge loss that is already being remedied with the reconstruction. The pavilions that at the moment are available are few: Science Centre, Officina dei Piccoli, Teatro Galileo 104, where it operates the cooperative Le Nuvole, the Congress Centre and the Science Store – Open Tue-Sat 9am-3pm; Sun 10am-5pm; closed on Monday – Via Coroglio, 104 - T: 081.7352424 – T: 0817352220 – www.cittadellascienza.it

COMPLESSO MONUMENTALE DI SANTA CHIARA - It includes a Church, a Monastery and a Convent. One of the principal monuments of medieval Naples, its construction began in 1310 at the behest of Robert of Anjou and his second wife Sancia di Maiorca, who, both devotees of St. Francis of Assisi and Santa Chiara, wanted to build a Franciscan citadel to house the Clarisse nuns in the monastery and the Friars Minor in the adjacent convent. Behind the church is the Cloister of the Clarisse, the monastery's main cloister, strikingly decorated with bright majolica tiles and considered a masterpiece of Neapolitan art. Open Mon/Sun 7.30am-1.30pm and 4.30pm-8pm - T: 081.7971231 - Complesso monumentale - weekdays 9.30am-5.30pm; Sat, Sun and public holidays 10am-2.30pm - T: 081.5516673 - T: 081.7971224 - via S. Chiara, 49C - www.santachiara.info - www.monasterodisantachiara.com

DUOMO - Known as the Duomo di San Gennaro or Duomo di Santa Maria Assunta, the Cathedral was erected at the end of the 13th century by Charles of Anjou. Its present appearance is the result of the numerous modifications that took place over the centuries, partially altering its original Gothic form. Off the right aisle of the nave is the Chapel of St. Januarius (Capella di San Gennaro), that also functions as the cathedral treasury (Tesoro) and is elaborately decorated with Baroque art – Open Mon-Sat 8am-12.30pm and 4.30pm-7pm, Sun 8am-1.30pm and 5pm-7.30pm – via Duomo, 147 – T: 081.449097

GALLERIA UMBERTO I - A mammoth steel and glass masterpiece built on the site of an entire block that was razed to the ground following the cholera epidemic of 1884. The Galleria was built as part of a program of renovation and modernization of the city which began with the Unification of Italy when a tender was put out. The winning project envisaged four large buildings joined to each other by an arcade designed by the engineer Paolo Boubée. Measuring 15 metres in width and 57 metres in height, the galleria was built between 1887 and 1890 and is a wonderful late Victorian marriage of technology with art. The Galleria has four access points: via San Carlo, via Santa Brigida, via Giuseppe Verdi and via Toledo.

SEVEN SEASONS OF THE SPIRIT

Solo exhibition by Gian Maria Tosatti organized by Eugenio Viola. In the conception and realization of the project, the artist has traced the trail of the book (Il castello interiore) in which St. Teresa d'Avila divides the human soul into seven rooms: Tosatti has transfigured the seven rooms of the chapel in as many monumental installations environmental.

PALAZZO REALE - Envisaged as a 16th century monument to Spanish glory, it was erected at the behest of viceroy Fernandez Ruiz de Castro who, in 1599, decided to build a palace capable of lavishly hosting his sovereign, king of Spain and his entourage. The nucleus of the entire building is the Royal Apartment which can be accessed via a monumental white marble stairway with a double ramp whose lower part is decorated with allegoric bas-reliefs – Open Mon-Sun 9am- 8am – piazza del Plebiscito, I - T: 081.5808111 – www.palazzorealenapoli.beniculturali.it

REAL ALBERGO DEI POVERI - One of the largest, most imposing buildings in Europe it was designed by architect Ferdinando Fuga in 1751, at the behest of King Charles III of the House of Bourbon. Originally designed to be 600 metres long with five courtyards and a church in the centre, due to a severe lack of funds, only the three innermost courtyards were built. Plans to complete the building according to the original design were finally abandoned in 1819 – Open Sat 9.30am-12.30pm by appointment only – piazza Carlo III – T: 081.5636062

UNIVERSITÀ DEGLI STUDI FEDERICII - This establishment was founded in 1224 with the specific aim of training administrative and skilled bureaucratic professionals for the curia regis (the kingdom's governing apparatus). It was also used to prepare lawyers and judges who would help the sovereign to draft and administer justice. Via Mezzocannone, 8 - T: 081.2531111 - www.unina.it

VILLA COMUNALE - Its gardens run parallel to the sea in via Caracciolo on reclaimed land featuring almost one kilometre of holm oaks, palm trees, eucalyptus trees and spacious flowerbeds embellished by Neo-classical sculptures, fountains and buildings including Casina Pompeiana and the Cassa Armonica. Designed by Carlo Vanvitelli the Villa Comunale was built in the 1780s by Bourbon King Ferdinand IV as a “Royal Garden” for members of the royal family. Following restoration work by Milanese architect Mendini with coloured chalets and a gold gate, it assumed a more modern appearance. The centre of the villa houses the Stazione Zoologica Anton Dohrn, an important research centre and home to one of the oldest aquariums in Europe. GALLERIE D'ITALIA PALAZZO ZEVALLOS STIGLIANO

The Gallerie of Palazzo Zevallos Stigliano in Naples, together with the Gallerie in Milan's Piazza Scala and the Gallerie of Palazzo Leoni Montanari in Vicenza, comprise the Gallerie d'Italia, Intesa Sanpaolo's museum and cultural hub.

The Gallerie houses a stunning collection of more than 120 works of Neapolitan art spanning the 17th to 18th centuries. Star attractions include the Martyrdom of St Ursula, Judith Beheading Holophernes attributed to Flemish artist Louis Finon, Samson and Delilah by Artemisia Gentileschi and Saint George by Francesco Guarini.

The museum's fine collection of landscape paintings, a movement that flourished during the 19th century, includes four paintings by Dutch artist Gaspar van Wittel. A first section is dedicated to landscapes and the School of Posillipo, with canvases by Anton Smink Pitloo, Giacinto Gigante, Salvatore Fergola, Domenico Morelli as well as many others. From here we move to the Naturalism of the Resina School right up to the more individual experiences of late 20th century artists. Another section explores areas of the city with the depiction of the interiors of monumental buildings and communal spaces. The exhibition ends with a collection of works by Vincenzo Gemito: a series of bronze and terracotta sculptures as well as drawings that chronicle his extraordinary artistic parabola.

Not only a museum space but also one of the city's social and cultural reference points, the Gallerie of Palazzo Zevallos Stigliano also host temporary exhibitions, concerts, symposiums, conventions as well as a wide offer of educational activities.

In Naples it's Befana time!

A journey between sacred and profane to discover one of the main Christian holidays. Appointments with the sweet little old lady in town: concerts, childrens' shows and events

The Epiphany holiday is linked to the adoration of the Three Wise Men, three priests who came to Bethlehem from the East, twelve days after Christmas, to bring gifts to baby Jesus. During the trip in which they followed the star of Bethlehem, the Magi kings knocked on the Epiphany's door, an ugly, old, hunchbacked lady, to ask for directions to Bethlehem. She showed them the way, but, despite their insistence, she did not go looking for them because she had too many chores to finish. After the Wise Men were gone, however, she decided to join them: not being able to find them anywhere, she knocked on every door, leaving a gift to each child in hope that one of them were Jesus. Since then she has continued to bring gifts for millennia. Even today this ugly, old, hunchbacked lady with a hooked nose and pointed chin with a hairy mole, dressed in rags, enters all homes through the chimney to put gifts and sweets in children's stockings: she leaves candy and cookies to the good ones and pieces of coal to the bad ones. The origin of the Epiphany celebration is not only religious but also has to do with agricultural tradition. It is said that in the twelfth night after Christmas, January 5th, Mother Nature, tired from all the energy spent during the past year, appeared in the form of an old woman flying through the sky on a broom, thin, ready to be burned as a dry branch and to be reborn from the ashes in the form of regenerated nature. For this reason, in this period, in the country, the rituals to drive away the evil from the fields are different. It is common practice to light fires from dead leaves, for example, or light up straw puppets representing an old lady. The Epiphany marks the end of the holiday season. A festivity somewhere between the sacred and the profane, which in Naples is celebrated with a solemn mass in the cathedral, although it is now considered the traditional festivity of children, who wait all night for the Befana to fill their stockings full of candy. Many events are organized in the city to celebrate the Epiphany.

The morning of January 6th, the Epiphany arrives in Piazza del Plebiscito to give sweets to all the children who then can visit "Pompieropoli", a course set up by the City of Naples and the Fire Department to teach children safety through fun games.

The Via Caracciolo promenade, instead, will welcome street performers and water shows

>> www.comune.napoli.it

'The witch has arrived', is also a 'sweet' party for children, which will take place in the Science Center on the morning of January 6th. Educational workshops, experiments, magic shows, tastings and workshops are held by chocolate masters of Perugia and the taste of Naples City.

ASK YOUR CONCIERGE

An interview with Paolo Cicatiello, Night Concierge at the Hotel Europa in Caserta and a member of the Golden Keys Association of Hotel Concierges in Campania.

What is the strangest request you've ever received from a client?

I've never received strange requests. Guests are always demanding when they arrive in a hotel: it is our job to empathize with them.

What is the nationality of the tourists you prefer?

In our business you cannot have preferences. Everyone carries something special. The Japanese, however, are different from all others: they always bow to thank you and love to photograph everything.

What do you recommend your guests to visit, in Campania?

Our region is full of history and culture, it mostly depends on the guests' preferences. The narrow streets of Naples, however, are always highly popular.

What do you think is the main quality that a concierge should have?

The predisposition to hospitality. He must be a true host, become a reference point for the hotel guests, meet all their needs with discretion and confidentiality.

You have been elected concierge of the Year in 2016. What did this prize mean to you?

I'm flattered. The experience improves us and this repays me of the sacrifices made over the years.

FOR ANY REQUIREMENT OR WISH THAT YOU MIGHT HAVE, ASK YOUR CONCIERGE!
